CALAMITY DAYS

It's hard to believe that we might actually have a full week this week with all of the snow days we've been having! Hopefully, we are past all of the delays and cancellations because we only have 12 calamity hours to work with which only allows for one more cancellation and a couple delays. Please be aware that if we were to exceed this number of hours, we will need to make up the time. Luckily, we have two school days built into the schedule that we could use as make-up days since USEVS is still in session allowing us to still have bussing. These days are March 14 and April 22. As of now, we still plan to take these days off from school. You will receive specific communication informing you whether we will be using these days to make up for lost instructional time.
