Parent Newsletter #19

1/17/22

We have reached halftime of the current school year and while we are still working hard towards our academic goals, we would like to take time to reflect on the first half of the year and make the necessary adjustments for the second half. The first five months of the year was an adjustment period for both students and staff alike as we introduced new programs, students, staff members, and class structures to our repertoire. While it was quite hectic in the beginning, I am so very proud of everything our students and staff have accomplished and for our ability to maintain in-person instruction. As we head into the second half of the year, we are determined to continue to meet the challenges we face head-on with tenacity and effective collaboration with our most valued asset: you. We want to continue to improve our craft and ensure that we are meeting your family's needs so please continue to communicate with us about how we can best serve you and your family. That is our goal and our purpose. Thanks again for choosing to be a part of our family and here's to a great second half!
