Parent Newsletter #23

February 10, 2020

Don't look now but we have reached the midway mark of quarter number three already and that means that the end of the school year is quickly approaching. I guess it is true that objects in the mirror are closer than they appear. As we head towards spring and hopefully more pleasant weather, we want to encourage you to continue to work collaboratively with your child(ren) on academics so that we might avoid the spring and summer "slump". Nice weather and the draw of summer vacation often combine to create the ultimate distraction for students when it comes to academic achievement and advancement and we want to help prevent this from happening. Spring also brings our most important round of MAP testing as we all get a clear picture of how we "stack up" this school year and where we still need to improve. We want to continue to ensure that we are giving our families the tools and resources they need to be successful so please let us know if there is anything that we can do to help get your child(ren) through the spring school season. Thanks again for being a part of our family here at St. Peter School and we look forward to continuing to meet both the spiritual and academic needs of our families and community.
